

NUPIRG office stays

Board reaffirms spaces

The Nebraska Union Board voted unanimously to reaffirm the space allocation for the Nebraska University Public Interest Research Group (NUPIRG) at the board meeting Wednesday.

Appearing before the board, NUPIRG organizer Jim Krueger told the board that a reorganization drive was proving to be successful and that he hopes to have the office operating again in two weeks.

According to board member Tim Mommaerts, NUPIRG was not entirely deactivated and that NUPIRG's office allocation is still in effect.

Board secretary Robert Moline reported that the Student Veterans' Organization, the Student Y and the UNL Women's Resource Center had applied for the space.

The Board also voted to bill the Union Bookstore $50 in booth rental fees, once the fees have been collected.

Board President John Kruescher said that the bookstore rented hallway space, which did not belong to the bookstore, to a jewelry vendor. According to Union Board policy, any rental of union space must be approved by the board.

However, Frank Kuhn reported that the vendor skipped town without paying the rental fees to the bookstore.

Also on the agenda was a closed meeting to evaluate Nebraska Unions director candidates.

Single parents workshop topic

A single parent workshop will be Oct. 20 at the Southeast Community College, 88th and "O" streets.

The workshop is sponsored by the Southeast Community College, the YWCA, and the UNL Division of Continuing Studies.

The one-day workshop offers information for single parents whether they are widowed or divorced, custodial or non-custodial, or male or female. Sessions will include presentations on grief, sexuality, social needs, credit and finance, self-affirmation, and fatherhood.

Registration starts at 8:30 a.m. and the workshops runs from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Child care will be provided.

The tradition continues...

The time was the Roaring Twenties and a new toy, the aeroplane, was changing from novelty to necessity. America was learning to fly... and Lincoln Aviation Institute was there.

Over the years, we've taught them all. From barnstormers, who would fly into history, to people like you.

Today, Lincoln Aviation Institute still provides the same exceptional training that's given fifty years of fliers their wings. We're a complete private aviation center, with aircraft sales, service and parts, as well as experienced instructors.

LINCOLN AVIATION INSTITUTE

Come fly with us and discover just how affordable flying can be. We offer both airplane and helicopter instruction, approved for veterans training, plus reasonable rates and flexible schedules, so we can tailor a flight program to your needs.

For business or pleasure, you'll find private flight can be the most efficient way to go. You fly where and when you want and there's no 55 mph limit in the sky.

If you're not interested in becoming a pilot, but want the time-efficiency of private aviation, we offer a complete charter service.

Right now, we're improving our facilities and adding new equipment and services to make private flying even easier and more enjoyable.

Lincoln Aviation Institute. More than a flying school... a continuing tradition of aviation excellence.
